

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A motor control device for a multiple-phase motor includes a drive circuit (PWM inverter) which drives the multiple-phase motor (three-phase DC brushless motor), and a micro-controller that controls the drive circuit, wherein the micro-controller limits a motor current in accordance with an integrated value of a predetermined function of a phase current.